Translation

1. Once a goat was living together with its kids. They had a beautiful house. These seven kids would play happily in the fields. They had a happy life in the fields. They would play with the pigeons and with the butterflies, and sing.
2. (It went like this) until a mean wolf came into the field. He caught sight of kid goats. The wolf said to himself 'Oh nice these should have delicious meat. I can enjoy from them.' He said, 'I shall go put a plane in place and see if I can have something for this dinner'. He hides himself in a corner until the mother-goat leaves its kids alone, so that he could go without trouble eat all the seven of them.
3. He hided himself between the plants so that he could go in total ease and eat the kids. The mother-goat called its kids home. She said to them 'Oh my dear kids, I want to go to the market. buy some food for you. Bring you some delicious plants. Stay home!'
4. Be wary! In these surroundings there is a mean black wolf. He may come grab you. Don't open the door to anyone! Be weary! My claw is white, and my voice is high, but he would have a low voice. Be weary! Don't open the door until you make sure it's me. The kids listened to her
5. They said 'Ok mommy! Don't be worried. We won't open the door to anyone until you come back'. The mother said this to them and set off to the Bazar. The kids remained weary. They locked the door and started to play. They were assured that the door was closed. As soon as their mother was a little bit away from home, they started to play.
6. Suddenly someone knocked on the door. He said with a low voice 'I'm your mother! Open the door for me'. The small kid run to the door to open it. She didn't realize what was going on. She ran to open the door. Her older brother who was older than the rest stopped her
7. He said 'wait, why are you going to open the door? This is not our mother since his voice is low. Our mother does not have a low voice. Be weary!' He sent the small kid back. He said loudly 'Go you mean wolf, it's clear that you have a low voice. You're not our mother. Our mother has a high voice; your voice is very low!'
8. As soon as the wolf heard this, he left the place. He went and looked for a box of chalk. He had heard from others that whoever eat chalk will have a nice voice. As soon as the wolf heard this, he left the place. The wolf went, ate the chalk, and came back to to the house of the goat. He went and knocked on the door. He said with a nice voice 'Oh little kids, I'm your mother. Open the door for me.
9. see how many things I have brought you. what delicious things I have bought for you... I have brough all of these for you'. As soon as he said theses words the little kid went to the door and said 'Oh brothers and sisters, did you see that she is our mother. Look how nice her voice has become. Again, the older kid who was wiser looked from the bottom of the door. He saw that his feet were black (and said) 'our mother's feet are white' He said to them 'Do not open the door for him.
10. this is not our mother. Look at her feet how black they are. It is the same mean wolf. Be weary'. The wolf who had heard their speech said, 'What should I do?' He thought and said 'Ah'. He went to a mill. He threw himself into the flour, the flour into the mill. He put himself into the flour. He whitened himself. He returned to the kids' home. This time he went there knocked at the door with confidence.
11. He said with a nice voice 'Oh my beautiful kids, my sweet kids, I came back. I have brought you many good things... come, open the door for me'. The kids said 'This is the voice of our mother; her voice is nice; they looked from the bottom of the door; they saw that her feet are white. They said 'Ok, this is our mother' They went happily to open the door for him. They didn't know what was awaiting them and what was going to happen to them

12. They opened the door. They caught sight of the wolf who had put flour on himself; he had whitened himself. They were about to pass out; each would go to a corner. The wolf removed the flour on himself (through shaking) and said, 'Are you ready to be eaten by me? and be a delicious meal for me? tonight I shall relax and eat you all!'. As soon as the kids heard this, each ran to a direction. One kid went inside the kettle. One kid went inside the big pot. One kid went under the bed. One kid went inside the big pot and hid himself
13. The kid that was the youngest of all hid himself inside the clock. It took less space than others. The mean wolf didn't have mercy on any of them. One by one he took them out from inside the kettle. He took them out from inside the oven. He took them out from inside the big pot. He ate them one by one. Only the small kid who hid himself inside the clock.... was left behind. The wolf couldn't find him and eat him. He didn't realize that the kid went into the clock and hid himself.
14. The wolf who was satiated left the goat's house. He went out. At around this time the mother-goat came back from the bazar. She looked at the door and saw that it was open. She said, 'Where are my kids?' She went inside. May your eyes not see a bad day! It was a bad day; her house was totally a mess; her pots and dishes were all broken; Everything was in a bad state
15. As she looked around the house, she was about to go crazy. She was crying, 'Oh my dear kids, where are you then?' She kept crying. At the moment when she was crying, all of a sudden, the little kid went out of the clock. She said 'Mommy, welcome! We didn't realize that it was the wolf' we opened the door; the wolf came and ate all the kids. He only didn't find me. I had hidden myself inside the clock
16. As for the other kids, one went into the big pot, each hid himself in a place. He found them all, ate them, and went away. The kid cried and said 'look how he deceived us... [lit. put a hat on our heads]. He is black; but he had turned himself white and became like you. He deceived us [lit. put a hat on our heads]; he ate all the kids.' She kept crying; the tear would come from his eyes. Her mother hugged him.
17. She told him 'My little kid, don't cry! It doesn't matter! Let's go search, to see where this wolf has hidden himself'. He is now asleep; let's go find him and see where he has hidden himself'. They followed each other. They went together to find the wolf, and give him a good lesson
18. The wolf was so full that he had fallen sleep near the house in the field. He was snoring so loud that the leaves of the tree were shaking. The mother-goat and her kid found the wolf and went to him. The mother-goat said to her kid. Go bring me a needle and the scissors from home'. I have a business to do with this wolf.
19. when the kid brought her mother the needle and such, the mother went and tore the wolf's belly with scissors. She took out her kids one by one. Quickly, she filled the wolf's belly with stones and sew it with needle for him. The wolf had eaten so much meat that he was asleep the whole day. He woke up the next day. At the sunrise, he woke up [lit. the sun fell on him]
20. He was thirsty. He could hardly walk. He was heavy; he thought he had eaten much meat. Little by little, he went, arrived at the well. He went to the well. He bowed himself to reach the water. He fell into the water

21. As the wolf fell into the well... the kids were watching the scene from behind the window. They danced happily 'Nice, the wolf fell into the well'. They went to their mother. The wolf fell into the water; we are relieved now... From now on we can do to the field and play without fear. We are relieved from the mean wolf.'
